

Weather events and other emergencies that I survived

Commentary: First, let me tell you about the time I faced the wrath of nature head-on. The El Nino flood of November 9; 3 years in a row. The warm rain came down in sheets, and visibility dropped to near zero. I was stranded, but I knew I had to stay calm. I found shelter, rationed my supplies, and waited for the storm to pass.

This experience taught me the importance of preparation and resilience. Therefore, I urge you to create an emergency kit and plan for any disaster. Remember, you can survive too.
